Lía vive in una piccola cittadina della Spagna svuotata, immersa nella natura, ma nonostante sia l'unica femmina, non trova mai un momento per annoiarsi, perché ogni giorno è un'avventura da scoprire.

Lía regresa con los huevos y una enorme sonrisa a casa de Marcelina. Antes pasa frente a la casa de Benito, un señor un tanto extraño y misterioso; eso murmuran el resto de los vecinos. Aunque a Lía no se lo parece.

Benito iba con su carretilla repleta de trastos pasados de moda, que rescataba del punto limpio. Los llevaba al cobertizo del patio de su casa. Se tiraba todo el día de allí para acá y de acá para allá.

—Benito, buenos días.

—Buenos días, Lía —le contestó muy serio—. Tengo mucho trabajo, no puedo entretenerme. Que pases buen día.

Leo è un ragazzo che oggi compie dodici anni. Crescendo, le persone intorno a lui notarono che aveva molte caratteristiche che lo rendevano diverso. Alcuni di loro si sono rivelati un po' difficili per lui, ed è per questo che ha dovuto lottare molto fin da piccolo per realizzare il suo sogno e quello di sua madre: poter camminare insieme tenendosi per mano.

Leo tuvo muchas amistades que siempre le ayudaron cuando lo necesitó, igual que él hizo cuando a ellos les hizo falta.

Aprendieron juntos que las diferencias son lo que nos hacen especiales, y que a través de ellas se pueden conocer muchas cosas nuevas.

Por eso, recuerda siempre que si tus diferencias o las de los demás alguna vez hacen que te sientas extraño o que te alejes de las otras personas, lo más hermoso de tu ser reside en lo DISTINTO y ESPECIAL que brilla dentro de ti.

Y lo mismo sucede con el resto de las personas.

LLEVAS UNA ESTRELLA EN TU INTERIOR
QUE TE HACE ÚNICO E IRREPETIBLE.

La volpe Baltasar trovò un posto dove vivere vicino a un pollaio. Sembrava un piano perfetto per assicurarsi il cibo, finché, osservando le galline, si rese conto di quanto fossero felici di vivere tutti insieme, condividendo la loro amicizia. Poi ha cominciato a capire che, in realtà, quello che voleva non era mangiarli, ma poter essere felice come loro, e non sentirsi solo. Una simpatica gallina cuoca gli ha fatto capire che a volte bisogna osare per cambiare un po' le cose, per essere più felici. Cosa deciderà infine Baltasar?

A la mañana siguiente, muy desanimado, decidió ir a la granja de nuevo. No sabía muy bien qué iba a hacer. Se acercó despacio, se escondió junto a un arbusto, y comenzó a observar a las gallinas. Hoy estaban haciendo clases de vuelo: las mamás enseñaban a los pollitos a subirse a las ramas, cada vez más altas.

Algunos, los más pequeños, se caían, pero rápidamente se ponían en pie de nuevo y lo volvían a intentar. A Baltasar le parecía una escena muy tierna, y estuvo mucho rato mirándolos divertido, hasta que, de pronto, oyó una voz:

—¿Le parece bonito?

Una sera, dopo essersi infilata nel letto, una ragazzina abbattuta di nome Benni nota qualcosa che luccica fuori dalla sua finestra. L'oggetto luccicante si avvicina sempre di più fino a quando Benni non si trova faccia a faccia con una stella brillante caduta dal cielo! Attraverso il suo incontro con la stella, Benni apprende il potere dell'amor proprio e della fiducia in se stessi e la mattina dopo si sveglia sentendosi luminosa come la stella che ha individuato nel cielo.

Stranezze da Scienziato

Strampalato, coi capelli arruffati, lo sguardo nel vuoto, impegnato in discorsi farneticanti con se stesso: è forse questa l'immagine che abbiamo dello scienziato, lo stereotipo più familiare che il cinema, i fumetti e la televisione hanno creato - e copiosamente alimentato. Uno scienziato pazzo che non è necessariamente un "genio del male", ma piuttosto uno studioso ossessionato dalle proprie ricerche e caratterizzato da deviazioni comportamentali. Quelle che comunemente chiamiamo eccentricità. Ma è solo un'invenzione narrativa? O c'è un fondo di verità in questo cliché? Di fatto, le biografie di molti scienziati sono ricche di aneddoti, stranezze e curiosità. Non fanno eccezione coloro che nacquero, vissero o a vario titolo legarono il loro nome alla città di Firenze.

Tra disordine e caos creativo

Leonardo Da Vinci è celebre per il suo genio, ma potrebbe esserlo altrettanto per la sua irregolarità. Il disordine nella sua vita regnava sovrano, così come le stramberie, a partire dall'insolita poetica di scrivere da destra verso sinistra. Leonardo infatti era mancino, e poiché la sua educazione si era fermata alla scuola dell'abbate (le nostre elementari) nessun insegnante aveva provveduto a far cessare l'uso della cosiddetta mano del diavolo, e così Leonardo aveva perfezionato lo stile che gli riusciva meglio. Non crediamo proprio dispiacesse al Maestro che la sua scrittura risultasse illeggibile ai suoi contemporanei: è nota la consapevole volontà di Leonardo di non rendere pubbliche alcune sue invenzioni e pare che fosse solito inserire volutamente degli errori nei disegni, affinché i suoi progetti non fossero realizzabili da altri. Una forma di protezione della proprietà intellettuale? Non è certo esagerato definire Leonardo, se non strampaloso e strampalato, quanto meno disordinato. Tutta la sua vita infatti risulta caratterizzata da una scarsa cura delle carte, dei disegni e degli studi, tanto che nei suoi fogli ricorre spesso il buon proposito di mettere ordine. Di lui ci sono rimasti più di 13.000 tra fogli di appunti, calcoli, disegni, progetti di macchine e trattati scientifici. Alcuni rappresentano veri capolavori dell'indagine anatomica e naturalistica: nei suoi studi possiamo leggere i segreti del corpo umano; gli animali e le piante che ritrae hanno una naturalezza tale da sembrare vivi. Architetto e ingegnere, ideò strumenti, ingranaggi e macchinari, alcuni assai famosi, come il carrazzato, altri avvolti nel mistero: si dice che avesse progettato il primo automa robot della storia. Spirito libero, riuscì a sfuggire anche alle pressanti richieste di Isabella d'Este di farle un ritratto simile a quello della più famosa, e forse anche più bella, Dama con l'ermellino. Di lui ci sono rimasti anche favole, barzellette e indecifrabili rebus, alcuni scritti con una fluidità del tratto impossibile per chi doveva scrivere con una penna d'oca. D'altronde, come avrebbe potuto essersi, il Maestro, dall'inventare anche una penna più comoda?

"SENZA CAPO NON C'È CONOSCENZA, SENZA UNA FREQUENTE RINUNCIA ALLA RAGIONE NON C'È PROGRESSO"
Paul Feyerabend - Contro il metodo, 1975

Ogni cosa al suo posto

All'immagine dello scienziato disordinato bisogna contrapporre quella altrettanto caratteristica dello studioso meticoloso, preciso e ossessionato dall'ordine. Faceva parte sicuramente di questa schiera Antonio Cocchi, medico e studioso, nato a Benevento ma di origini fiorentine, come fieramente rivendicato nelle intestazioni di tutte le sue pubblicazioni. Nella prima metà del '700 divenne figura di spicco all'interno dell'Ospedale di Santa Maria Nuova.

You Can't Please Everyone

Father and Henry were going to the market with their donkey.

They met a young man on the road. He said to Father, 'Your boy should ride on the donkey. It will save him from getting tired on the trip.'

Henry sat up on the donkey.

Soon they met a young woman just outside town. 'You should let your old father ride the donkey!' she said to Henry.

So Henry got down and Father got up on the donkey instead...

After the entered the town, they met an old man. He said to Father, 'There's room on that donkey for the boy as well. You should let him up!'

So Henry got up on the donkey behind his father.

Near the market, they met an old woman. She said to them, 'You should both be carrying that poor donkey! He's too old to be carrying the two of you!'

So Henry and Father got down and began carrying the donkey. When they reached the market, everyone laughed at the sight of them.

'How silly!' they said. 'Why don't you just let the donkey walk!'

The moral of the story is you can't please everyone!

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 Where were Henry and Father going?
- 2 What did the young woman say?
- 3 What did the old man say?
- 4 Why did the people at the market laugh at them?
- 5 What is the moral of the story?

WEEK 3 DAY 4

Rock Bottom

Hannah and Liam loved going to their family's mobile home near Castletown Beach for their holidays. They met all their friends there every summer.

'See you all at the Curley Pools in the morning,' said Hannah as the friends strolled home after a game of basketball.

'Great!' replied Sophie. 'That's the best place for swimming.'

'But the water is always so cold. I'm going to wear my wetsuit,' interjected Liam.

'I heard the water is so deep in the Curley Pools that there's no bottom,' said Daniel.

'That's impossible,' replied James. 'How could there be no bottom to the sea?'

Early the next morning the children walked to the Curley Pools. They all wore wetsuits and flip-flops. They were good swimmers and as soon as James saw the water, he shouted, 'Last in is a rotten egg.'

He kicked off his flip-flops, ran across the rocks and jumped straight in. Even with his wetsuit on, the cold water made him shiver. Soon Sophie, Liam, Hannah and Daniel were swimming alongside him.

After a while, James shouted, 'I'm going to swim down and look!' He tumbled headfirst under the water, his two feet kicking in the air as he dove.

'He's checking out that silly rumour that there's no bottom to the Curley Pools,' Sophie said. They bobbed around waiting for what seemed like ten minutes, but it was really only about ten seconds. James resurfaced, spluttering and gasping for air.

'How far down did you go?' enquired Liam.

James laughed. 'Right to rock bottom! And here's a rock to prove it.' He raised his arm and dropped the large grey rock into the water, splashing everyone.

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 What was the name of the place where the children went swimming?
- 2 Why did Liam say he was going to wear a wetsuit?
- 3 What rumour did Daniel hear about the Curley Pools?
- 4 How long did James spend underwater?
- 5 How far down did James go to disprove the rumour?

The Conch Shell: Part 1

Amy's cousin had a conch shell. When Amy held it to her ear, she could hear the roar of the waves breaking. She loved listening to it.

'I'm going to find one for myself,' Amy decided walking up and down the beach. A big wave rushed up the sand and dropped a small but beautiful conch shell at her feet. 'Yay!' she shouted and, picking up the shell, held it to her ear.

To her great surprise, she heard a tiny voice. It was very faint and she could barely make out what it was saying: 'Help me, please. I'm stuck!'

Amy listened again and heard the same tiny plea. Turning on her heel, Amy ran all the way home, holding the shell tightly in her fist. The first person she showed the shell to was her friend Lauren.

'There's something stuck in the shell,' Amy said, almost tripping over her words, 'and it can talk!'

Lauren thought that Amy was messing, but when she held the conch shell to her ear, she too heard the tiny voice begging for help.

'Whoever or whatever is inside this shell needs rescuing,' Amy told her.

'We could break it open with a hammer,' suggested Lauren. However, Amy was afraid they might hurt whatever tiny creature was stuck inside.

'I've an idea,' Amy said, taking the shoelace out of her shoe. She dangled the end of the shoelace into the twisting curls of the shell. At first it just hung there limply.

'Well, so much for that idea,' said Lauren. 'I'll get the hammer.'

Suddenly the shoelace became taut. The whoever or whatever had caught hold of it.

'It could be an evil genie,' warned Lauren, looking worried.

Amy's curiosity was getting the better of her. Ever so gently, she pulled the shoelace. Pop! Out flew the shoelace... with a teeny-tiny mermaid clinging to the end of it! ■

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 What kind of shell did Amy's cousin have?
- 2 How many times did Amy walk up and down the beach?
- 3 What did the voice in the shell say?
- 4 Why did Lauren suggest throwing the shell back into the sea?
- 5 What was clinging to the end of the shoelace?

Spelling Bee: Part 1

With a rush of blood to the head, Sally had entered the annual school Spelling Bee. For the last two years Emmett had won first prize and now he was going for a hat-trick. There wasn't a word that Emmett couldn't spell but he spoiled it all by bragging about it so much.

'I is the champ!' he boasted, pounding his chest like King Kong. 'Dee undisputed champion speller of dee whole wide world.'

'Undisputed chump, more like!' Amy called to him. 'You're our secret weapon,' she whispered to Sally. 'You're going to shoot him down in flames. Spell 'stratosphere'.'

Every day, Amy called out words at random to surprise test her. Each time Sally spelled them correctly, Amy clapped her hands and did a little dance.

'Excellent! You are going to blow that little bragger out of the water!' Amy enthused.

In the preliminary round of the Spelling Bee, the top spellers from the senior classes competed to go forward to the Grand Final. The principal, Ms Ryan, was calling out the spellings. 'Spell 'catfish', she asked Sally, which was so easy it was a bit insulting, but Sally knew she was just being kind.

Sally was so nervous, her throat tightened and no words came out. The Spelling Bee was about to be over for her before it had even begun. 'C-a-t-f-i-s-h!' she shouted suddenly, amazing at herself. When she made it to the second and then the third round, she began to relax just a little. Finally, there were just three pupils left: Emmett, Conor and Sally. Sally's next spelling would decide whether she made it to the Grand Final.

'Spell 'sensational', said Ms Ryan.

'S-e-n-s-a-t-i-o-n-a-l,' Sally called out clearly and confidently.

Emmet pretended to yawn before reeling off his correct spelling of 'arrogant'. He rudely giggled when Conor misspelled 'responsibility', and was knocked out. That left Sally and Emmett to go head-to-head in the final.

Ed.: possible to cut one line?

QUICK QUESTIONS

1. How many times has Emmett won the Spelling Bee before?
2. How was Amy training Sally?
3. Why did Ms Ryan give Sally such an easy spelling to start off?
4. Why was the Spelling Bee almost over before it began for Sally?
5. In what way was Emmett rude to Conor?

WEEK 13 DAY 1 49

Portcastle Beach

The early morning mist dissolved into a bright, yellow heat as the summer sun rose higher in the sky. Henry, Ella and Jake walked the narrow grassy path that skirted the golf course leading to the beach at Portcastle. They each carried a plastic bucket. Soon they were at the dunes, where clumps of heather and seagrass topped undulating sandhills that rolled down to the beach.

'Last one down is a rotten egg!' exclaimed Ella as she dashed to the bottom. She had done this many times before and had perfected the art of sand dune descent. With heels digging into the dry sand, she leaned backwards as she ran to prevent herself toppling down the steep incline.

Henry followed effortlessly, but Jake, the youngest of the siblings, was a novice. He started steadily but gathered momentum halfway down the embankment. He swiftly lost control and, with his wobbling legs unable to stop, tumbled head over heels and landed at the bottom in the soft sand. He laughed, picked himself up and shook sand from his hair. 'Let's go look for treasure!'

The three of them walked out onto the level sand spreading out before them like an airport runway. Hoof prints dented the wet sand up ahead where early morning riders had been out at first light, trotting their horses through the invigorating sea spray. A lone surfer, lying flat on her board, paddled into the oncoming waves in search of the perfect breaker.

Overhead, they heard a lark singing high in the sky. Swallows twittered and dived on the warm air, snatching unseen insects as they flew. Gulls hovered on the shoreline, their wings spread wide as they coasted on the breeze. In the distance, there was a group of sandpipers at the water's edge, rhythmically dipping their heads in search of food while their tails bobbed.

Soon Henry, Ella and Jake reached the jagged, limpet-encrusted rock pools. They treaded carefully as they crossed the slippery seaweed that decorated the rocks. Henry examined a shiny white pebble that had been perfectly polished over countless years by the force of the sea. Ella thrust her hand into the warm water of a rock pool and a tiny orange crab scuttled to safety beneath a stone.

'Look, there's a starfish!' exclaimed Jake, beckoning the others to come and see.

The three children spent all morning exploring the many hidden treasures of Portcastle Beach.

QUICK QUESTIONS

1. What is the name of the beach the children went to?
2. What happened to Jake as he ran down the sand dune?
3. What birds were rhythmically dipping their heads into the water?
4. Why were there hoof prints in the wet sand?
5. Why did the children have to walk carefully near the rock pools?

The Black Boat

Luke stared out to sea as he and his sister, Orla, strolled along. He narrowed his eyes, put a hand up to shield against the glare of the sun, and asked, 'What's that black thing in the water? It seems to be moving.'

Orla had been scrutinising the sand in the hope of finding another colourful shell for her collection. Now, she gazed out to sea and said, 'Yes, I see it. I think it's a seal. It's too big to be a swimmer.'

'And it's moving so quickly,' replied Luke. 'Nobody could swim that fast!'

The object gradually came into view. 'It's a little black boat! There are two men in it!' Orla exclaimed. Their rubber dingy was fast approaching the shoreline. One man was steering it and the other was holding a plastic box in both hands. 'Let's hide and see what happens,' she suggested, pointing to rocks under the cliff at the far end of the beach.

The men landed the dingy and jumped out. One pointed towards the rocks where the children were hiding.

'They're coming toward us,' whispered Luke. 'Let's move.'

They crouched as low as they could and slipped out of sight onto a narrow path leading to a grassy patch at the top of the cliff. They lay flat on the grass and peered down at the rocks where they had been hiding. The two men were now right below them.

One ordered, 'Move this one! We'll stash it under here for now!'

The other man lifted a huge rock and placed the box he had been carrying underneath. Then he carefully replaced the rock. The men returned to the black dingy and sailed back out to sea.

Luke's eyes widened. 'Did you hear that? They used the word 'stash'. That's a sure sign the box must contain something precious.'

They climbed down the cliff path, and ran to where the box had been hidden. They both needed all their strength to move the heavy rock. When they opened the box, they saw that it contained wads of fifty-euro notes.

The following day, the headline in the paper read, 'Local children outwit bank robbers.' The story recounted what had happened but Luke and Orla's dad made sure their names and photos didn't appear in any of the news articles. 'There are some details we don't want publicised,' he declared.

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 Why did Orla think it might be a seal in the water?
- 2 What type of boat did the bank robbers have?
- 3 Where did the children go to see what the robbers were doing?
- 4 How did Luke know that the box contained something precious?
- 5 Why do you think Dad did not want the children's names or photos in the news?

WEEK 20 DAY 3 79

Dolphin Rescue

Cillian's neighbour, Martine Norton, kept horses. She ran a small riding school and had taught Cillian how to ride when he was very young. Nowadays, he often dropped by after school or at the weekends to help Martine with the horses. On bright mornings, Martine would take her favourite horse, Abe, for a gallop along the strand. Cillian would often ride with her before school on his favourite horse, Sparky.

Early one morning, Martine and Cillian were riding Abe and Sparky along the empty seashore. It was low tide and the sun shimmered on the wet sand as the horses splashed along the water's edge.

'What's that on the sand?' Cillian called out, pointing to a smooth black mound way ahead of them.

'It could be a rock or a bin bag. Let's check it out,' said Martine, and set off at a gallop down the beach. Cillian chased after her and the race was on.

Martine won and had already dismounted by the time Cillian caught up. 'It's a young dolphin,' she said, bending down.

'Is she alive?' asked Cillian, kneeling on the sand.

Martine put her hand on the shiny black body of the beached dolphin. 'Just about,' she said. 'Help me lift her. I don't know how she ended up on the beach but we need to get her back into the sea quickly.'

The dolphin was surprisingly heavy and it took both of them using all their strength to lift her. They waded into the cold sea. When they were up to Martine's waist and Cillian's chest, they gently lowered the dolphin into the water. For an instant, the dolphin didn't move and then, with a flick of her tail, she swam out of their arms and under the waves.

'Look!' cried Cillian. Two dolphins, one large, one small, leapt in a perfect curve out of the sea, then disappeared. 'She's found her mother!'

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 What did Martine do for a living?
- 2 What was Martine's favourite horse called?
- 3 What did Cillian often do before school?
- 4 What did Martine think the dolphin was from afar?
- 5 How did Cillian know that the dolphin had found its mother?

Lost

I had a stupid row with Mum and Dad on the way to the market. 'Why do I have to come? Why can't I stay at the campsite with Isaak and Evi?'

Isaak and Evi were Dutch and, although we'd only known each other for three days, we hung out together all the time, mostly at the pool. It made a change from spending all day with Ryan, which usually happened on holidays.

Dad was having none of it. 'We're not leaving you on your own and that's that. End of story.'

The market was huge, the biggest in Europe apparently... and the most crowded! 'Don't get lost,' Mum warned me, as though I were a small child. We were at a fish stall watching the fishmongers fillet glassy-eyed fish while shouting and laughing with customers. Dad was holding Ryan up so that he could gawk at the lobsters crawling over each other in a tank. I was bored and wandered off. I found a sweet stall and bought a bag of cola bottles.

I tried to head back to the fish stall but couldn't find it. There were miles of stalls that all looked the same. I struggled through the throng of shoppers but there was no sign of Mum, Dad or Ryan. I thought the best thing would be to find my way out and wait back at the car but I couldn't see over the heads of the people and I had no idea which entrance we had used. Someone jostled me. My cola bottles spilled on the ground and were immediately trampled. I reached for my phone but it wasn't in my back pocket. Stolen! I looked around desperately. Suddenly everyone seemed unfriendly and hostile. A man in a yellow jumper was following me. Every time I turned I could see him, gesticulating and shouting at me. I pushed on blindly through the crowds, tears stinging my eyes.

Suddenly the yellow-jumper man was in front of me and I couldn't get away. 'Is OK,' he said in broken English, holding up one of his palms. In his other hand, he held out my phone. 'It dropped from pocket.'

'Gracias,' I mumbled, feeling foolish as he smiled and walked away. I had five missed calls and numerous texts asking where I was.

'Mum!' I shouted above the noise, when she answered on the first ring.

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 Why did the narrator have a row with her parents?
- 2 Why could she not find the fish stall?
- 3 Why did the shoppers suddenly seem unfriendly and hostile?
- 4 Why did she feel foolish?
- 5 In what country does the story take place? Give a reason for your answer.

WEEK 3 DAY 3 11

The Months

January brings the snow,
Makes our feet and fingers glow.

February brings the rain,
Thaws the frozen lake again.

March brings breezes loud and shrill,
Stirs the dancing daffodil.

April brings the primrose sweet,
Scatters daisies at our feet.

May brings flocks of pretty lambs,
Skipping by their fleecy dams.

June brings tulips, lilies, roses,
Fills the children's hands with posies.

Hot July brings cooling showers,
Strawberries and gilly-flowers.

August brings the sheaves of corn,
Then the harvest is borne.

Warm September brings the fruit,
Sportsmen then begin to shoot.

Fresh October brings the pheasant,
Then to gather nuts is pleasant.

Dull November brings the blast,
Then the leaves are whirling fast.

Chill December brings the sleet,
Blazing fire, and Christmas treat.

by Sara Coleridge

QUICK QUESTIONS

- 1 What month brings breezes loud and shrill?
- 2 What month scatters daisies at our feet?
- 3 What does the month of August bring?
- 4 When is it pleasant to gather nuts?
- 5 What does chill December bring?

Un giorno incontrarono un simpatico lupacchiotto e,
come accade con tutti i cuccioli che non hanno pregiudizi, divennero amici, pur essendo animali differenti.
Ogni giorno si incontravano sotto la grande quercia
e giocavano a rincorrersi e a fare la lotta.

ECCOLA LASSÙ!
LA BAMBINA CON LA MONGOLFIERA.
MA NON È UNA MONGOLFIERA QUALSIASI.
È UNA MONGOLFIERA INVISIBILE!
NESSUNO PUÒ VEDERLA.

LA BAMBINA NAVIGA
OLTRE LE NUVOLE,
SOPRA LE CITTÀ,
AL DI LÀ DI OGNI MONTAGNA.

When Mirko and Lisa set off on a trip

And the party goes on.
